AdvantageHealth Corporation Attends Mark of Excellence Training

Bloomington, MN – July 2009. AdvantageHealth Corporation recently attended the Minnesota Department of Health's Mark of Excellence Training on July 16th. The Mark of Excellence Training contained information on the yearly influenza virus strains and the training, preparation, and storage of the vaccine. The process for handling of the vaccine is crucial to delivering a safe and effective vaccine to everyone who receives it. In addition, the importance of adherence of the Nursing Practice Act and following the protocol designed to give safe, professional nursing care was emphasized. Included in this training was also current information on the H1N1 Novel Virus, its movement worldwide and its possible affect on the United States.

AdvantageHealth Corporation is vigilant in keeping abreast with the CDC's recommendations and we participate annually in the Mark of Excellence Training to ensure that best practices and safe provision of flu shots is being followed for our clients. The Mark of Excellence signifies that AdvantageHealth continues to strive to follow its mission of health and wellness for everyone, through being informed and up to date on the health of the community.

The Mark of Excellence

The goal of the Mark of Excellence is to create a unique program just for community vaccinators; provide training to community vaccinators who deliver influenza vaccine in non-traditional settings; and increase consumer confidence in influenza clinics in alternative or outreach settings. The purpose of Mark of Excellence is based on best practices and ensures safe provision of flu shots outside of a regular clinic setting.
